

St. Johns Unified School District named a Google for Education Reference District

St. Johns Unified School District is honored to be recognized as a Google for Education Reference District. “This recognition is important because a school district must first be nominated by Google and then demonstrate that the district has implemented programs, curriculum and technology to qualify as a Reference District,” said Superintendent Ed Burgoyne. “It speaks volumes for what our teachers are doing in the classroom and for the support, given to technology, by our Governing Board,” Burgoyne continued.

Google for Education Reference Districts are districts that demonstrate excellence and thought leadership through the innovative use of technology, including G Suite for Education (formerly known as Google Apps for Education) and Chromebooks, to drive impact and positive learning outcomes.

According to the Google for Education website, SJUSD joins a select group of 110 innovative districts world-wide that are identified as leaders in educational innovation and transformation. Benefits to being recognized at a Reference District include: joining Google’s Trusted Tester Program; having the District’s Story of Impact shared on the Google for Education website, and the opportunity to share their experiences and success with Google for Education tools within their communities as well as showcased by Google for Education nationally.
