

Hilda Patricia Yantz Miller died Sunday, October 6, 2019, from natural causes. Her husband William Miller was with her. She had many friends around the United States who share the family's grief. Patricia was born June 28, 1927, at Indianapolis, Indiana to father James Yantz and mother Belvia Franklin Yantz. She had three sisters, Rudell, Heddy and Mary. Unfortunately, her mother contracted consumption and passed away when Patricia and Mary were young. Her father died when Patricia and Mary were still in their teens, and Patricia tried to take care of Mary and herself. She was smart and enterprising, always taking classes and learning something new. She was a talented seamstress, making not only dance costumes for professional studios, but stylish clothing for private clients plus for herself. She also made robes and vest for the churchchoir and bell choir. She was always interested in style and design and became interested in Cosmetology. She decided to go to beauty school and after graduation, she opened her own shop in Zanesville, Ohio, where she specialized in high fashion hair styles. She constantly took courses to improve her many skills. She even thought it would be fun to learn to fly a plane and did. She was an exceptionally talented person, always willing to share and reach out to those in need. She was a devoted member of the TRINITY Lutheran Church and a Charter Member first meeting in Orange Blossom bingo hall, was always available to be of service. This included often helping with their building projects. She was a woman of great courage as she had to face the untimely death of her youngest child, David, who died in a tragic tractor accident. Her children and grandchildren were the light of her life. She was a loyal and faithful friend and will be greatly missed on this earth. She was married to Richard P. Wise, who passed away August 11, 1968, They had four children: Richard D. (Cindy) Wise; Teresa F. Wise (Brent) Maupin; James M. Wise (deceased); David P. Wise (deceased). She was married to Donald Kocker, with whom she traveled the United States and around the world in for his work as an engineer. He passed away June 2004. She married William Miller on January 14, 2006, who has been her loving mainstay through her final illness. Through out her marriage with Bill they traveled through the US with an RV driving to Alaska twice and many states twice or more. Trip's to Israel and Germany with Lutheran Hour Ministry.
