Primary Change: MLA no longer requires the URL with the citation of a web-based source.

If your teacher requires you to present the URL address, type it immediately after the date accessed:

Nonperiodical Publication: These are sources that are not released on a regular schedule. An entry for a Nonperiodical publication on the Web usually contains most of the following components, usually in sequence:

1. Name of the author, compiler, director, editor, narrator, performer, or translator of the work
2. Title of the work (italicized if the work is independent; in roman type and quotation marks if the work is part of a larger work)
3. Title of overall website (italicized)
4. Version or edition used
5. Publisher or sponsor of the site; if not available, use N.p.
6. Date of publication
7. Medium of publication (Web)
8. Date of access (day, month, and year)

A Work on the Web Cited with Print Publication Data: If the Nonperiodical work you are citing also appeared in print, you should include the bibliographic data for the print publication as part of your entry.
