Today I zoomed with my kids. We did a mystery science on the weather which tied into our Wonders unit we did this week. We had a great discussion and they got a small assignment to draw the weather they observe outside today. They had to include the four points we discussed. I asked them to take a picture of their assignment and either text it to me or dojo message it to me, if they could. I received two. They were to also go onto Moby Max as well. They were excited to do it.

One of my students was expressing her dislike for this quarantine. She said it felt like jail at home. I thought that was funny but true. I love to hear their perspectives.
